Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine whether there were differences in the prevalence of risk factors for low back pain between two groups of nurses working in different departments of a tertiary care hospital. A cross-sectional study was conducted among 100 nurses who worked in the intensive care unit (ICU) and 100 nurses who worked in the medical-surgical department. Data were collected from a questionnaire that included information about demographic characteristics, work-related variables, and psychosocial factors. Results showed that the prevalence of low back pain was higher among ICU nurses than among medical-surgical nurses. The prevalence of risk factors for low back pain was also higher among ICU nurses than among medical-surgical nurses. The results suggest that interventions to reduce the prevalence of low back pain should focus on reducing the prevalence of risk factors for low back pain.
